- Education with a Difference
- Volunteer Organizations
- Improving Quality of Life for Families & Communities
- Leadership Development

What is Campbell County Homemakers?

Homemaker clubs provide education with a difference. They are local clubs of one of the largest volunteer organizations, the Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association. The Kentucky Extension Homemakers Association (KEHA) is a volunteer organization that works to improve the quality of life for families and communities through leadership development and education in cooperation with the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service.

The Extension Homemakers provide information and education for the family that meets the needs of today's lifestyles. Educational lessons are taught by the Extension Service on topics ranging from food and nutrition, parenting/relationships, health, family economics, aging, and promoting healthy homes.

Community Involvement

As dedicated volunteers, we network with local agencies to enrich the lives in our community.

Member Activities

Members have the opportunity to participate in a variety of activities and events throughout the year, including trips, programs, and seminars.

Campbell County Homemakers are a diverse group of individuals of many different ages, interests, and talents. You can join as a club member and attend monthly club meetings, or as a mailbox member to receive information in the mail and attend activities as time allows. Currently, most clubs meet during the day either in their homes, churches, or at the Extension Office. Each club has its own set of officers and its own focus and activities.
